

Fight for Life - True Story

Judit Molnar

In my case report I would like to present the story of a young girl. 13 years ago in Kecskemét, Hungary a young girl (17 years old) was operated with necrosis due to strangulation ileus. The surgery was carried out by an excellent surgeon, Dr. Szajki Károly, who is a distinguished professional with many awards and merits. Thanks to him this time. The surgery was followed by intensive therapy, where the patient was kept under deep anesthesia for three weeks. Meanwhile, she also received artificial nutrition and respiration. At the expense of lengthy struggles, she woke up and found a partial muscle pain in her leg. This was later treated with a muscle stimulator. Meanwhile, ventilation and oral feeding have also begun. After a lengthy process, she or much better, she went to college and took her doctorate. She graduated from the University of Nutrition Science and PhD in Food Science. Treated with minimal medication and vitamin supplementation is perfectly satisfactory. It can be said to be healthy if she pay attention to nutrition. Especially for the developement of lactose intolerance. I am the young girl. I very much hope that I will give many people strenght by writing and short communications. It is a teacher's message that the impossible does not exist, there is a way out of every problem. I am now going to be a Doctor of Food science and I work as a head of social service. I wish every one strenght and perseverance in life.
